Your Best Life

Done correctly, this is an extremely uplifting exercise. Just organizing and prioritizing your best life can increase your happiness, optimism, and belief that you can accomplish your goals.

When you answer these questions, pretend you're in Fantasyland. There are no limits here. We will worry about reality later.

Why Do You Want This?

Now take some time to write out exactly why you want your Passionate Purpose.

After a speech I gave recently, a woman came up to me and asked a great question: “How specific should your why be?”

My answer is: As specific as you can make it.

Get 100% sure of your “what” and your “why.” Get 100% committed to them. Then your “how” will appear.

– Greg Knapp

Your why is the driving force to your Passionate Purpose and all the goals you set in the pursuit of it.

Get crystal clear on your why.

Here’s what I mean. What is the purpose of your financial goal? Yes, of course it’s to earn more money, but why?

Why do you want to earn more money? Is it so you can be financially secure for life? Or is it so you can be financially independent to the point you no longer have to work while maintaining your lifestyle?

Is it so you can take better care of your family, make memories with them on special vacations, allow your children to take piano lessons?

Is it so you can give more generously to family, friends, your church and charities?

Is it to expand your business so you can positively affect more people?

Is it all of the above?

How would achieving that goal make you feel?

What is it for you? Why are you pursuing your Passionate Purpose and your goals? Spend some time thinking about it.

Here’s how you do it:

1) Ask yourself, “Why do I want my Passionate Purpose?”

Your Life Timeline

You have some great stories, successes and temporary failures in your life. If you tap into them, you will rediscover some great strengths and passions.

Think back as far as you can remember. Getting out old scrapbooks will help.

Then go through each year of your life remembering and writing down the best times, the highs, lows, successes and temporary failures.

Map them out on a timeline.

It will take a while to go through every year. You don't have to do it all at once. It's worth it.

Now see what patterns you can find that might lead you to your passions.

Congratulations! You Are Exactly Where You Should Be Right Now

When you really sit down and think about this you will find that you have been preparing for this your whole life. All your experiences, education, relationships, abilities, and work history have set you up to be right here, right now, ready to pursue your Passionate Purpose with reckless abandon.

You are exactly where you should be. This is your time. This is the beginning of the extraordinary life you've been dreaming about.

GO!

Do what others won't, so later you can do what others can't. That's how you pursue your Passionate Purpose and live an extraordinary life.
